Dairy Herd Awards Given At Banquet In Columbus Tuesday

At the annual recognition banquet for Dairy Herd Improvement Association members and testing supervisors in Ohio held at the North Broadway Methodist Church in Columbus Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wax, Nelson Price and Arvid Danenberg were given awards.

Nelson Price, operator of the Fred Bork farm in Eden Twp., received third place among the DHIA members in Ohio. For this award he received $25 in cash from the National Dairy Products Corporation. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wax, also of Eden Twp., received the first place award of $20 from the National Dairy Products Corporation. Only the top five DHIA members in Ohio received the cash awards. Aside from the top five awards other members in Ohio received honorable mention.

The awards were made on the basis of efficient production practices, improved pastures and roughage feeding programs, the breeding program, the herd health and sanitation program, the milk quality production practices on the farm and in addition the housing of the dairy herd was taken into consideration. Another item of importance on which the members were judged was the improvements made in the dairy herd practices on the farm during the year. Both the Price and Bork Holstein herd and the Wax Guernsey herd have been in the production testing program for many years.
